

LYDIA DIAMOND

African American Female Playwright reads from her award-winning play Stick Fly!

Friday, April 16, 2010
12:30-1:20 pm
Room 121, Academic building

How can loaded topics like race, class, and sex be discussed in a meaningful way yet still be entertaining for theatre-goers? Lydia Diamond attempts to probe these issues in her latest Huntington Theatre production of Stick Fly. Meet the playwright and listen to her read from this witty, insightful and comedic play that lifts the veil shielding the buried secrets of the LeVays, an African American family whose privileged life on Martha's Vineyard is put to the test. Ms. Diamond will also read from her plays titled The Bluest Eye, Harriet Jacobs, and Voyeurs de Venus.